Feeling pretty pumped

► Canada's national women's soccer team ready for big semifinal match against Mexico ► Needs to beat North American rivals in order to qualify for the London Olympics later this year ► Could set up final against U.S.

PHYLICIA

@METRONEWS.CA

Even with an Olympics-berth-deciding game on their hands, the players of Canada's national women's soccer team sneaked in time to give back to their community.

They dropped by to watch and encourage players from the Homeless World Cup team Thursday morning during training at Andy Livingston Park.

Paula Armstrong, a player on the women's street soccer team, said it meant a lot to meet the players from Team Canada.

"It's out of this world," she said. "It's beyond anything I could've imagined coming from the Downtown Eastside and being involved with drugs and poverty."

Omar Duran, who dropped in to play with his friends on the street soccer team, said the unexpected visitors distracted him from the morning scrimmage.

"They were all very friendly and nice," he said. "They're telling us they were nervous for (the game against Mexico), and excited as well.

"I had my heart divided because I'm Canadian and Mexican. I told them that and they were like, 'You have to decide if you're going to cheer for Canada or Mexico.' In the end, they won my heart and I'm going to cheer for Canada."

North Delta's Chelsea Buckland, a forward for the national team, said the team is in a positive mindset and pumped up to play on Friday.

"There's definitely the pressure of playing against a great Mexico squad," she said.

"Their fan base is going to be up to par with our Canadian fans."

"This is do-or-die. We're going to put everything on the line because this is it. This game is the determination if we go to the Olympics or not."

► A Vancouver police officer takes off his hat as hundreds of officers file into a church in Surrey on Thursday to honour the life of RCMP pilot Dave Brolin.

Pilot remembered as a hero

- Family and hundreds of police officers come together to remember Dave Brolin
- The RCMP pilot was killed in a helicopter crash on Jan. 17

MATT KIELTYKA
@METRONEWS.CA

A lone casket draped in a Canadian flag stood in the centre of Peace Portal Alliance Church as Dave Brolin was honoured one last time.

The RCMP pilot, a 46-year-old husband and father to two young children, died in a helicopter crash near Cultus Lake on Jan. 17 after a police training exercise.

On Thursday, hundreds of family, friends and police officers in full dress gathered in Surrey to remember the man credited with saving many lives through military service, search-and-rescue work and his RCMP duties.

Cpl. Paul Hayes, Brolin's tactical flight officer for the last four years, spoke on behalf of the family to equal parts laughs and tears.

"Know that your dad's a hero and he will always be a hero," Hayes said, directly addressing Brolin's eight-year-old daughter and 11-year-old son. "Of all his accomplishments in life, he was proudest of you two."

Brolin was often nicknamed "Captain Hollywood" for the dozens of times he's flown for film crews and "Captain Holiday" for his knack of maximizing time off to spend with his family.

But more than anything, Hayes will remember his friend as a motivated and courageous difference-maker.

"We can say we have saved a life or two, and we have caught prolific offenders. We put people in jail and have reunited loved ones," Hayes said, his voice breaking.

"This is what I thought being a police officer is all about and I got to live it thanks to you."

The cause of Brolin's helicopter crash is still under investigation by the Transportation Safety Board and B.C. Coroners' Service.

Trust funds set up for fire victims

Trust funds are being set up to help two families devastated by a deadly house fire on the Sna-Naw-As First Nation in Lantzville, just north of Nanaimo.

The two young sons of one family were killed in the blaze while the other family lost their home.

The First Nation is appealing for assistance for the grief-stricken parents of the two fire victims, and also for help for the family whose home was destroyed since they had no insurance and lost everything.

Inspector fires back at Pickton inquiry

► Lawyer suggests Biddlecombe never ruled out the serial killer theory

A former Vancouver Police Department inspector who's been strongly criticized at the Robert Pickton inquiry is firing back, disputing some of the claims that have been levelled against him.

Insp. Fred Biddlecombe was head of the major crimes unit in the late 1990s as police investigated reports of missing sex workers from the Downtown Eastside.

Three witnesses, including a former detective, have criticized Biddlecombe, who has been accused of being antagonistic and rejecting the theory that a serial killer was murdering sex workers.

But Biddlecombe's lawyer, David Neave, suggests his client never ruled out the serial killer theory and took steps to ensure the missing-women cases were investigated.

Neave confronted Kim Rossmo, a former geographical profiler, about Rossmo's claims that Biddlecombe was dismissive and refused to consider the theory that a serial killer was at work in the Downtown Eastside.

Neave pointed to a newspaper article in early 1999 in which Biddlecombe appears to have told a reporter he hadn't ruled out the possibility of a serial killer, and Neave also noted Biddlecombe assigned several investigators to the missing-women file that spring.

Restricting abortions favoured in province: Poll

The majority of British Columbians approve laws that outline when women can have an abortion, according to a new poll.

Angus Reid asked 1,001 Canadians about their view of abortion and found that 54 per cent of people in

B.C. favour legislation outlining when abortion should be allowed, while 36 per cent believe women should always have the right to an abortion.

The poll was conducted after an editorial in the Canadian Medical Association Journal urging doctors not to reveal the sex of an unborn fetus until 30 weeks of age to prevent selective abortions.

The editorial says immigrant Asian families, who tend to prefer males, are specifically a concern.

When asked about legislating specific laws against gender-based abortions, 64 per cent of British Columbians said they'd be in favour compared to 28 per cent who prefer no laws limiting abortion.

$25K loan was for end-of-the-world prep: Blackmore

JONATHAN HAYWARD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

► Winston Blackmore

In an effort to prepare for the end of the world, B.C. polygamous leader Winston Blackmore says he took out a $25,000 demand loan from the bank.

During testimony in the Tax Court of Canada on Thursday, Blackmore said he was directed by a patriarch in the community to get the money to "prepare for the worst."

The cash was to be used to gather supplies for a religious sect in southeast B.C., near the Canada-U.S. border, he said.

"Another deadline for the end of the world has come and gone. Some 15 deadlines have passed," Blackmore's self-published online newsletter later said in March 2004.

"Did you write that?" federal government lawyer Lynn Burch asked Blackmore.

"I could have wrote it," he said.

He acknowledged there had been at least 15 predictions for the end of the world from the prophet of the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, an offshoot of the Mormon church. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Remains in boot may be animal's

The latest remains to wash ashore in B.C. in a piece of footwear do not appear human.

Investigators say the remains may be from a sea mammal, possibly a seal. A person walking near the Vancouver Maritime Museum on English Bay found the boot on Thursday.

The B.C. Coroners Service was called in to examine the remains.

Nine human feet — most all of them in running shoes — have washed ashore in B.C. since 2007 and the coroners service has managed to find identities for six of them.

Police and the coroners service have said it appeared the feet separated from bodies naturally in the water without any foul play.

Enter the Year of the Dragon

- New Year's festivities will fill Vancouver streets this weekend
- As always, it's threatening to rain, but Sunday's parade will go on

JENNIFER KWOK
VANCOUVER@METRONEWS.CA

Breathe in the fire of dragons and watch lions dance this weekend at one of the city's largest parades.

Vancouver's Chinese New Year's Parade on Sunday celebrates the Year of the Dragon, with performances by more than 3,000 people from a raft of community and cultural groups.

"This year we will be having three dragons instead of one because it's the dragon year," said Syrus Lee, director of the Vancouver Chinatown Merchants Association.

Organized by the Chinese Benevolent Association of Vancouver since 1979, the parade has expanded to attract more than 50,000 spectators and includes the largest assembly of traditional lion-dance teams in Canada.

Expect appearances by the Vancouver Police Department motorcycle drill team, marching bands and other multicultural dance troupes.

Taking the same route as last year, the two-hour-long parade begins at noon at the Millennium Gate, proceeds east along Pender Street and south onto Gore Street before turning west onto Keefer Street, and finishes at Keefer and Columbia.

Afterward, free festivities continue until 5 p.m. at a cultural fair at Sun Yat-sen Plaza. The fair runs Saturday and Sunday.

Although there is rain in the forecast for Sunday, Lee is confident the temperamental weather will give way for the parade. "It's been raining every year," he said. "But it has always cleared up when the dragon is around."

► Almost 100 staples were needed to repair Christopher Evans' leg after he was allegedly bitten by a dog during an arrest.

Vancouver man sues city over dog attack

► Plaintiff had smashed a bus window with skateboard prior to arrest ► Needed almost 100 staples to close bite

@METRONEWS.CA

A 33-year-old Vancouver man is suing the city and two constables after a police dog allegedly bit him during an arrest and left him with a gruesome leg wound.

Christopher Evans, 33, was arrested June 12 after he smashed a city bus window with his skateboard. During the arrest, a police dog allegedly attacked his right leg, ripping the skin and causing a nasty gash on his thigh.

Vancouver police declined to comment Thursday as the civil suit is before the court.

Evans was transported to Vancouver General Hospital where almost 100 staples were needed to close the wound.

"The nurse at the hospital told me it was amazing the dog didn't rupture my artery and kill me," Evans said in a written statement Thursday.

He was initially charged with mischief, but the charge was later dropped. "I shouldn't have hit the bus, but the repercussions were way overboard. They shouldn't have responded like that."

According to Evans' claim, the construction worker was returning from his sister's place and, frustrated by being unable to board a bus, smashed his skateboard against a bus door, shattering a window.

The claim says Evans was skateboarding through an alley, with headphones on, when a police dog attacked him, biting him first on his lower leg and then seizing his right thigh. He estimates he was bitten five times; the longest was for more than a minute. He was bleeding heavily when an ambulance arrived about five minutes later.

Douglas King, a lawyer with the Pivot Legal Society, wants the VPD to examine its policies and see if there are ways to reduce dog-bite injuries.

"It's easy to say, 'He committed a crime, he deserved it.' But the reality is, we can't send everyone who commits a small crime to the hospital."

Statistics from the Office of the Police Complaints Commissioner, released Thursday by Pivot, show that dog bites account for almost 50 per cent of serious injuries by municipal police departments.

Cities Summit aims to grow business

JEFF HODSON
@METRONEWS.CA

Executives from some of the world's biggest high-tech companies will connect with delegations from more than 30 international cities next week as Vancouver plays host to the inaugural Cities Summit.

More than 400 entrepreneurs and civic leaders are expected to take part in the summit, which will look at the future development of cities and discuss the business opportunities that could result.

"We expect that we'll hear lots of good ideas from cities and companies around the world to help shape our decisions going forward," said Mayor Gregor Robertson.

"The world will add three billion people to our cities in the next 40 years and that means massive business opportunities for companies that are developing new technologies. And some of those (companies) are here in Vancouver."

The Cities Summit,

which is being hosted by the city and the Vancouver Economic Commission, will include speakers like Calgary Mayor Naheed Nenshi and author Douglas Coupland.

Elizabeth Sheehan, president of Climate Smart, a local company that works with small- and medium-sized businesses to manage waste and carbon emissions, is among those planning to attend.

"I'm really interested in the conversation that is happening among cities about the business of building our city tomorrow — a smarter city, a healthier city, a more innovative city."

The Cities Summit runs Wednesday and Thursday at the Vancouver Convention Centre.

- For decades they were considered more than weird: A Christian sect that practised polygamy
 ► Now the Mormons are in the spotlight, with one of their members having a good chance at becoming U.S. president ► Mormons have established themselves as an American success story

Mormonism's leap of faith

ELISABETH BRAW METRO WORLD NEWS

Karen Sorenson, 29, is a public relations executive in Los Angeles. She's also a Mormon, one of the fast-growing denomination's 14-million members.

"Where I was grew up (in San Diego) there weren't many Mormons," she tells Metro. "Kids in school would ask me questions like, 'How many moms do you have?' I had no idea why they'd ask such a thing until I realized that many people believed Mormons still practise polygamy."

Now, says Sorenson, things are very different: "I don't get questions about polygamy anymore. When people hear that I don't drink or smoke because I'm a Mormon, their reaction is usually, 'Wow, I could never do that.' My being a Mormon isn't a deal-breaker for them. It's like being a vegetarian."

Mormons are officially known as the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints. Only half of Americans consider Mormonism a Christian religion, and some Evangelicals call it a cult.

"Mitt Romney is a good, moral person, but that does not make him a Christian," Baptist leader Robert Jeffress recently said. But according to a new survey by Pew, 63 per cent of Mormons say that acceptance is rising.

"In the academic environment of Boston, there's very little direct bias against us," says Patrick Turley, a 26-year-old PhD student at Harvard. "Sometimes people attribute beliefs to me that aren't true, but usually a short conversation clears it up."

"Romney has made us feel more mainstream," says Derek Morton, a 30-year-old realtor in Utah. As a teenager, Morton rebelled against his faith. "I felt like, 'I want to order beer, too,'" he says. "But now I feel that giving up things like alcohol has given me more freedom. I don't have to worry about going to jail for drunk driving."

Fifteen members of the United States Congress are Mormons. So are many business leaders, including Credit Suisse CEO Eric Varvel and JetBlue founder

David Neeleman.

Behind the success: An army of more than 50,000 young Mormons who spend two years preaching their faith around the world, under often challenging circumstances. Even outsiders credit the Mormon missionary program. BusinessWeek calls it "God's MBA."

FAITH NOT TOP ISSUE: POLLSTER

Karlyn Bowman, pollster, American Enterprise Institute.

Everybody talks about Mitt Romney's faith — except Romney himself. Why? He clearly knows that there's resistance to a Mormon candidate. Gallup recently asked Americans if they'd consider voting for a Mormon, a gay person, a black person and so on. The only presidential candidate a majority of voters said they would not vote for was an atheist. That said, some Evangelical Christians would never vote for a Mormon.

How important is faith in this election?

Not as important as usual. The economy is still the number 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 issue.

And the criticism of Romney's wealth?

Making a lot of money has never been a sin in American politics, but in this election it's a bit of an issue. ... Right now Americans think most powerful people make too much money. ● ELISABETH BRAW

Polygamy

Last year, Warren Jeffs was sentenced to life in prison for sexually assaulting young girls and fathering a child with one of them. Jeffs led the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, a 10,000-member sect that broke away from the official Mormon church a century ago. Polygamy remains the practice most people associate with Mormonism. The church's founder, Joseph Smith, advocated having multiple wives, but the official church banned the practice 120 years ago. Even so, breakaway sects still advocate polygamy — and it's juicy material for TV like HBO's Big Love. ● MWN

Deaths not an accident: Crown

► Lawyer delivers closing arguments in Shafia family trial ► Security issue spurs delay earlier in the day

The evidence against three people accused of killing half their family over honour is "irrefutable," a Crown attorney told the jury in the case in closing arguments that lasted well into the evening after a bomb threat delayed proceedings earlier Thursday.

Crown attorney Laurie Lacelle told the jury hearing the Shafia family murder trial that Mohammad Shafia, 58, his wife Tooba Yahya, 42, and their son Hamed, 21, were each responsible for planning and carrying out four murders, executed to get rid of family members causing them dishonour.

"Shafia, Tooba and Hamed had decided that there was a diseased limb on their family tree," she said. "Their decision was to trim the diseased limb and prune the tree back to the good wood." She urged the jury to find all three guilty in what the Crown has alleged is a quadruple honour killing of Shafia's three daughters and his other polygamous wife.

"You know this was not an accident — it was murder," Lacelle said at the end of her lengthy address. "They did what they each believed had to be done. Now it's your turn. Find them all guilty as charged. There is no other way."

The courthouse in which the Shafia trial is taking place was evacuated just before court was about to start Thursday morning. While police would only say there was a "security concern," a source told The Canadian Press the reason for the evacuation was a bomb threat.

7 Forces members recognized for bravery

It was one of the those heart-stopping moments every pilot who flew in Afghanistan feared — the dull thud of rounds hitting the helicopter and the smell of smoke.

But for Capt. William Todd Fielding, it wasn't some abstract concern and on Thursday he was awarded the country's third-highest valour decoration for what he did in the critical moments after the Taliban sprayed his CH-147 Chinook with gunfire.

Fielding was among seven members of the Canadian Forces to receive the Medal of Military Valour from Gov. Gen. David Johnston in a ceremony at Ottawa's Rideau Hall.

His helicopter was hit in the fuel tank and caught fire as it took off in the volatile Panjwahi district, west of Kandahar city, on Aug. 5, 2010. The Niagara Falls, Ont., native landed the burning chopper in an insurgent-controlled area and got everyone off safely.

The other recipients included Master-Cpl. Adam Holmes, Master-Cpl. Gilles-Remi Mikkelsen, Pte. Philip Millar, Master-Cpl. Paul Mitchell, Pte. John Nelson, and Sgt. Graham Verrier.

- Mitchell and Verrier were recognized for holding their ground under fire and inspiring other soldiers.

Iran willing to talk to foes

Iran is ready to revive talks with the U.S. and other world powers, President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad said Thursday, but suggested that Tehran's foes will have to make compromises to prevent negotiations from again collapsing in stalemate.

Iran's insistence that it will never give up uranium enrichment scuttled negotiations a year ago and still looms as a potential deal breaker even as tougher western sanctions target Iran's critical oil exports.

Ahmadinejad added his voice to proposals by Iranian officials to return to talks Thursday at a rally in Kerman, saying a nation that is in the "right" should not be worried about holding dialogue.

Iran indicated earlier this week it was ready for a new round of talks with the five permanent UN Security Council members plus Germany. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

No coddling at Facebook

► What it's really like to work for company founder Mark Zuckerberg

Mark Zuckerberg's former director of engineering says the Facebook CEO is not a pain in the ass to work with, but don't expect "emotional coddling."

Yishan Wong is giving the world a glimpse of the social-networking boy wonder on the question-and-answer website Quora, for which Wong is an advisor.

Wong worked at Facebook from 2005 to 2010, for much of that time in management roles when the company exploded into a major corporation from a small startup.

"He's a demanding CEO with a monomaniacal focus on making Facebook succeed in its mission," Wong wrote.

"He's a perfectly nice guy on a personal level; it's just that professionally, he is focused on getting it done and has a limited tolerance for emotional fragility in the people he needs to help him execute on that mission."

Great business leaders tend to have "a significant body count of ex-employees claiming that they were autocratic and mean," Wong pointed out.

Zuckerberg gives employees "ever-greater challenges to surmount," he said, which should be fine for an employee who is confident and emotionally secure.

If you're looking for a boss to develop you or who gives you confirmation or even acknowledgement of your opinions, Zuckerberg's not the guy for you, said Wong.

"He does have a touch to ignore people when they're talking.

"I would characterize him as tough but fair."

Facebook addicts get help at 'rehab'

A pair of entrepreneurs has created an online tool to target Facebook addicts, called FaceAnonymous.

"The first thing most young people do when they log in to a computer is to type an F," says Dan Penguin, co-founder of FaceAnonymous, the first "Facebook rehab."

Penguin and friend Siavosh Arasteh set up a website spreadsheet where people worldwide can record every time they logged in to Facebook.

Curt Dalton, CEO of Internet Time Machine, a company that analyzes web search words, says "Facebook" is the fastest-growing addiction search after "gaming," and it is trending higher.

"The first step to fix an addiction is to become aware of the problem," Siavosh told Metro.

But Internet psychologist Graham Jones emphasizes that as Facebook addiction is so new, treatment is only experimental at this stage.

Aboriginal-rights advocates clash with Aussie PM

► Gillard loses shoe in melee following ceremony to mark Australia Day ► Protesters later burn national flag

Australian Prime Minister Julia Gillard stumbled and was caught by a security guard as riot police helped her force a path through a crowd of rowdy protesters following a ceremony to mark Australia's national day Thursday.

She appeared distressed as she was pulled away from the protesters but was unharmed. She later remarked that she was made of "pretty tough stuff" and commended police for their actions.

Some 200 supporters of indigenous rights had surrounded a Canberra restaurant and banged its windows while Gillard and Opposition Leader Tony Abbott were inside officiating at an award ceremony.

Harper signals change

► PM's speech hints at reforms for pensions, research and immigration

Ottawa will transform the country's pension system to curtail government costs, but details won't come until the budget, Prime Minister Stephen Harper said Thursday.

In a major speech at the World Economic Forum, Harper also signalled looming reforms in immigration as well as research and development — all in the name of ensuring Canada's economy is on a strong footing.

The idea, he said, is to position Canada as a more competitive force in the global economy and to confront the pressures of an aging population.

"In the months to come, our government will undertake major transformations to position Canada for growth over the next generation," Harper said in an address to several dozen of the 2,600 forum delegates.

Harper said his government has worked to keep financial disorder out of Canada and is stepping up efforts to set the country on the right track for coming decades.

Ottawa rethinks securities regulator

The federal government announced Thursday that it will head back to the drawing board following a court verdict that scuttled its original plans for a national securities regulator.

Ottawa still hopes to create a national body, more limited in scope and in collaboration with the provinces, that would play a role in monitoring long-term risks to financial markets.

Finance Minister Jim Flaherty said in Davos that he hoped an agreement could be reached with the provinces for a national plan. THE CANADIAN PRESS

METRO CANADA IN LONDON, ONT.

As Caterpillar reported record financial results Thursday morning, Canadian Auto Workers across the country launched informational pickets to support the company's locked-out London employees.

Toromont — a CAT dealer with offices on Enterprise Drive in London, Ont. — was among the places union workers picked to hand out flyers. The scene was similar at dealers in about a dozen other cities spread across seven provinces, said Bob Scott, chairman of the CAW unit at Electro-Motive Diesel.

Caterpillar's firm financial footing hardly came as a surprise, Scott said. Most workers expected the company to make big profits.

"It was just how much it was actually going to be," he said.

Dugan did say the plant isn't "competitive in terms of its overall costs," including labour.

The contract offer that Electro-Motive workers rejected last month stemmed directly from that, he said. Union representatives have said it included deep wage cuts and other concessions.

"When they purchased the facility (in 2010) they knew what the contract was," Scott said. "That plant has always made money."

Labour unrest

- The 12 sites targeted on Thursday included Caterpillar-branded locations owned by Toromont Industries of Toronto, Hewitt Group of Pointe-Claire, Que., and Finning International Inc. of Vancouver.
- On Wednesday, about 80 CAW workers in Ingersoll, Ont., blocked a locomotive that had been built in London to protest the lockout.

'AMERICA'S BACK' SPEECH CAN'T SAVE SINKING SHIP

THE METRO LIST

METRO

My resolution this New Year's Eve was to be less cynical. Oh well, four weeks still beats last year's record.

1 Research in (slow) Motion: RIM appointed a new CEO in an attempt to revive dying BlackBerrys in a world of iPhones and Androids. His name is Thorsten Heins, but he may as well be Thurston Howell III, because all the money in the world ain't getting him off that island.

2 Muddled Voyage: The man that drove his car through the Waterloo, Ont., police station last November was apparently sentenced to a year of community service ... as captain of a cruise ship. Oops!

3 Political Hubris: Stephen Harper finally met with delegates at the World Economic Forum this week. He rebuked European leaders for being fiscally irresponsible, and cited Canada as the role model. He referenced our medicare system which, in hard times, assures Canadians the same unsatisfactory services they've come to expect, at no additional cost.

4 Idol Setback: American Idol is back for its 11th season, and the first individual voted off is Steven Tyler for his rendition of The Star Spangled Banner.

5 Sexy Spinsters: Ladies, if you are unattached, attractive, and believe in love at first sight with a stranger who will also be dating 25 other women on national TV, then I've got great news — The Bachelor is coming to Canada! The not-so-great news is that you are probably desperate and have low self-esteem. But good luck!

6 Love on the Rocks: Another celebrity breakup hit the news wire this week as German model Heidi Klum is divorcing R&B singer Seal. My immediate reaction to the news was, "Those two were married?"

7 Spoiler Alert: Academy Award nominees were unveiled this week, and I want to prepare for my Oscar pool by identifying this year's pretentiously touted film that no one actually wants to watch, à la English Patient or King's Speech, and bet on that.

8 Ice Dreams: Bruins goalie Tim Thomas ignited controversy by refusing to join the NHL champs who were invited to appear at the White House this week. Thomas stated that he had become disillusioned with the government, whose actions over the past few years, he feels, have been counter-constitutional. On the other hand, he still blames his parents for never providing figure-skating lessons.

9 God Save the School: Dr. Alisun Pawley, a musicologist from the University of York in England, concluded in a recent study that the Canadian national anthem was not very "sing-along-able." My first question is, "Who funded this study, and why?" Second question is, "Should a university professor be using a word like 'sing-along-able'?"

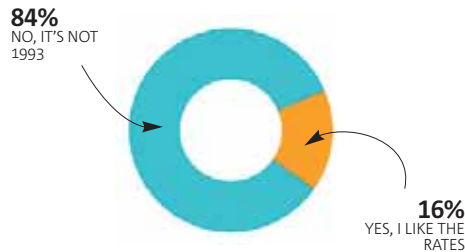

10 American Delusions: The U.S. prez showed us once again that "Campaign Obama" is far better at his job than "President Obama." His "America's back" speech was shrewdly more feeling than fact. If the country were a business, I'd suspect he was getting ready to sell to China, but that's just silly ... or is it?

Shinier 'Blue Marble'

New image of Earth captured

SNAP. It's our blue planet, like we've never seen before. Nasa's latest "Blue Marble" photograph is the most high-resolution image of Earth ever captured. This picture was taken on Jan. 4 from Suomi NPP, Nasa's most recently launched Earth-observing satellite, the first in a new series of such devices. ● MWNN kilometres — the distance above Earth this photograph was taken. This new high-resolution image displays about 1.6 kilometres per pixel.

Satellite facts

- Composite image: Created from four orbits of the Earth's surface.
- Worth lots of numbers: Suomi NPP weighs 2,041 kgs, carries five instruments, and orbits the Earth about 14 times each day.
- 'For weather forecasting': Collects data on clouds, atmosphere and oceans.

First photo was upside down

HISTORY. The original "Blue Marble" photo was taken by the Apollo 17 crew on Dec. 7, 1972, from a distance of about 45,000 kilometres. It was the first opportunity to photograph the south polar ice cap. It was originally taken upside down due to the way the astronauts were then travelling. ● MWNN

Drew's Big Miracle

▶ Drew Barrymore learns that a few whales can get stakeholders to put their agendas aside for a little while

Maybe this won't come as a surprise to many, but Drew Barrymore found it pretty easy to get into the mind of the Greenpeace crusader she plays in Big Miracle. "I spent a lot of time — a lot of time — with Cindy Lowery, the woman I play in the film," Barrymore says of her preparation for the part. (The character on screen goes by the name Rachel Kramer, though.) "And she's just rad and a total badass and super-cool and fun, and we really actually connected, which is the way you hope it will be, but maybe it will and maybe it won't. But we were like two peas in a pod. It was great."

Big Miracle tells a true tale about all types of people — feuding news anchors, Inuit natives, oil tycoons, even the Russian navy — coming together to help three gray whales trapped under the arctic ice off northern Alaska, cutting off their migration and threatening their lives. It wasn't just the natural drama of the story but also the amazing camaraderie involved in the rescue that attracted Barrymore to the project. "I just think seeing this story and living in it, you just appreciate that everybody put their agendas aside for a second to work on the same thing, and it's sort of peeling away the layers," she says. "I liked when I got to say to [Ted Danson's oil executive] character in the film, 'You're not as hard to hate as I thought.' I just liked that moment and thought what it would be like if you actually were stuck and got to know the people that you thought you were so different from.”

While the Greenpeace crusader Barrymore plays in the film starts off shouting through a megaphone at a city council meeting, she doesn't want Big Miracle to have that level of preachiness. The goal, she says, was "making it personal rather than, like, soapbox-y — which I hope this film achieves or is good at. It's amazing how it touches on so many things that could be different today if they were different back then, but it doesn't do it in like a preachy, in-your-face kind of way. So I think the more you do speak from the heart rather than thumping the agenda... I just think that that's where people listen."

► In Big Miracle, Drew Barrymore plays a Greenpeace crusader trying to save three gray whales.

Not getting jaded

▶ Starting in entertainment as an infant, Drew Barrymore has had a long Hollywood career, considering she's only 36. And while she's found tremendous success in adulthood, the actress, writer, director and producer finds that the tough times are the key to keeping herself grounded. "I mean, it's just a choice, I suppose," she says of not taking success for granted.

"I've also experienced in life that it really can all go away, so that was a wonderful thing to experience because then you really do appreciate what you have. So I've experienced a bit of both, which is really such a blessing."

Tackling the 'royal' W.E.

► Actress Andrea Riseborough talks about being directed by the Queen of Pop and learning more about royal interloper Wallis Simpson

SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Actress Andrea Riseborough has no time to be intimidated by co-workers, even when they are world-famous icons.

"Making a movie is no small feat," she says, "and there is so little time and you can enter into something being paralyzed by fear or you can just experience it."

She's referring to being directed by Madonna in W.E., a film that mixes-and-matches a modern day New York tale with the scandalous 1930s love affair between Wallis Simpson and King Edward VIII. "I didn't know her personally," she says of the singer-turned-director.

"I went to meet her and was taken aback at her ultimate passion for wanting to tell the story. That was really what ignited me."

"When she sent me the script I read it and thought it was totally unique in the sense that it existed in the surreal. There are two time frames intertwined with one another and I found that really unique."

She says as the project started she had only a peripheral idea about Wallis Simpson, the American socialite whose husband, Prince Edward, abdicated his throne to marry her. Wallis was, says the actress, "a still image, unmoving."

That picture soon started coming to life, but it took some time for both director and actress to flesh a real character out of Wallis's life. "We were really quite complicit from the outset in terms of who we might discover this woman to be," Riseborough says.

Madonna...

► "There is always a story behind the artist. If they make good enough art people will be interested in it and I think that is why people are so interested in Madonna. She's an inspiration," says Riseborough.

"Neither of us really knew yet. We knew what we had researched but that really is the suit that you then have to unzip and forget about. (Madonna) talks about trusting the DNA being within you but not being a slave to it."

The result sheds some light on why the story of the divorcee and the king still resonates with people almost 80 years after the event.

"It's interesting for us all to question why we find it such a fascination that the king might give up his throne for someone who's not terribly beautiful," she says.

Man on a Ledge*Genre: ThrillerDirector: Asger LethStars: Sam Worthington, Elizabeth Banks

An effectively simple premise is ruined by endless convolutions in Man on a Ledge, which casts

Sam Worthington as an ex-con who has mysteriously and perilously planted himself on the wrong side of a Manhattan hotel penthouse. Elizabeth Banks is good as the police psychologist assigned to talk him down, but Asger Leth's stilted, uneven direction fails to effectively balance their tête-à-tête against the heist-movie machinations that take over in the second half and consign Man on a Ledge to forgettable thriller-of-the-week territory.

One for the MoneyGenre: Action/ComedyDirector: Julie Anne RobinsonStars: Katherine Heigl, Jason O'Mara

Based on Janet Evanovich's popular Stephanie Plum novels, One for the Money casts Katherine Heigl as an unemployed Jersey girl who desperately takes a job as a bounty hunter, which soon finds her tracking down a former lover. If that premise sounds over-worked, wait until you witness the farcical characters, clunky dialogue and droll plotline that structure this threadbare action comedy.

Evanovich fans may be curious but Julie Anne Robinson's (Grey's Anato- my) adaptation, but it never really comes together.

Pina is a rare film that actually benefits from the 3D format. Director Wim Wenders examination of German choreographer Pina Bausch, who died during pre-production, is a character study masquerading as a ballet. Mixing archival footage with beautiful scenes of her Tanztheater Wuppertal ensemble performing her creations (both onstage and in the outdoors), Wenders uses dance to capture his subject's spirit. Dance enthusiasts will marvel at this film;

there's more than just elaborate body movement on display.

🌐🌐½

Angelina Jolie's tabloid baiting star power might be working against critics taking her feature directorial debut, In the Land of Blood and Honey, seriously. That's unfortunate because Jolie's nightmarish and yet reportedly authentic anti-romance is a work that's dark and artful and as painful to endure as it is fascinating. In the early '90s, as the Bosnian war rages and Serbian forces increase their ethnic cleansing of Bosnian civilians, a young woman (Marjanovic) is spared the relentless physical and sexual assaults and humiliations of her fellow prisoner at the hands of the soldiers by a Serb general (Kostic) who not-so-secretly loves her. A masochistic, twisted relationship develops between the two. But is Marjanovic really in love with her conflicted captor/lover or is she just using him?

Say it ain't so, Demi

► Actress' trip to hospital caused by inhalant, according to report

THE WORD

SCENE@METRONews.CA

This is a hard one to really believe: The substance that reportedly put Demi Moore in the hospital was nitrous oxide, a gas most commonly used in dentist's offices and whipped cream cans that is also popular on the concert tailgating scene, according to TMZ.

A friend of Moore's reportedly called 911 after the actress had an adverse reaction to a "whippet," a small canister of nitrous oxide that can be inhaled. But friends say the most recent incident — which landed Moore in rehab — was just the latest in a long downward slide.

"Really, it was over the last year her friends saw a change," the source tells People magazine.

"She wasn't sleeping as well, didn't seem to be eating and looked really gaunt."

Whatever it was, Moore was released from the hospital yesterday.

There's no word on her next steps. But let's hope she'll take better care of herself — and will stay clear from any Disco Biscuit concerts in the near future.

Can I get a 'D' for drunk?

There's a reason Pat Sajak and Vanna White were able to act excited every time a correct letter was guessed on The Wheel of Fortune — They were sloshed.

On ESPN's Dan Le Batard is Highly Questionable radio show Tuesday, Sajak told the host that back in the '80s, he and Vanna would down margaritas between shows and then stumble back to the set.

"Vanna and I would ... have two or three or six and then come and do the last shows and have trouble recognizing the alphabet.

► Wheel of Fortune host Pat Sajak

They're really good tapes to get a hold of. I had a great time," Sajak said.

"I have no idea if the shows were any good, but no one said anything, so I guess I did OK."

But rest assured. Now that he's been hosting for more than 30 years (and is 65 years old) he's not on the sauce while handing out cars and cash prizes.

"I would be hesitant to have anything to drink now," he said.

So, now that we understand how Pat and Vanna got through the drudgery that was daily game show hosting back in the day, does anyone else wonder what Alex Trebek is on? Whippets? Or is that just Demi Moore's game?

Winter grilling

Barbecuing isn't just for summer days. Try these winter tips:

- Always pre-heat your barbecue to 400 to 450 (f) at minimum, and adjust from there.
- Cooking times may change with cold; always use an instant read thermometer.
- Grill with the lid down — heat loss on a cold day is significantly greater than a warm summer day.

Beyond your comfort zone

Though no slouch in the unique grape varieties or colourful winemaking characters departments, South African wines still get the short end of the corkscrew from consumers.

Some of it is South Africa's fault (it never put forward a public personality for its wines) and some is Canadian wine buyers' fault (who talk a good game about wanting wines with personality then turn their noses up at anything that isn't from mass market).

The vineyards around Cape Town are arguably the most beautiful in the world, producing classically South African fruit in the form of chenin blanc and pinotage as well as familiar grapes like shiraz and sauvignon blanc.

If you're intrigued but still scared of drinking outside your comfort zone, South Africa is the new home of the most popular white grape on the liquor landscape: Pinot Grigio.

The 2011 Flat Roof Manor Pinot Grigio ($10.95 - $12.99) is a grape-forward PG from Stellenbosch with a modern look and hint of tropical fruit that matches creamy pasta sauces. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

This recipe is a dinnertime favourite at many tables. However, it is one for which some people use a can of soup. By making your own pan sauce, you help to reduce sodium and create flavour that is still big.

Mushroom Gravy Chicken Preparation:

1 In small bowl combine Italian herb seasoning, dried basil, black and hot pepper; set aside. Slice chicken breasts in half horizontally to get 4 pieces. Sprinkle herb mixture evenly on both sides of chicken.

2 In large nonstick skillet heat oil over medium high heat and brown breasts on both sides for about 5 minutes and remove to plate. Add onion, mushrooms and thyme and cook, stirring for about 10 minutes or until softened and gold-

Return chicken to the skillet and simmer, turning occasionally for about 5 minutes or until chicken is no longer pink inside. EMILY RICHARDS IS A PROFESSIONAL HOME ECONOMIST, COOKBOOK AUTHOR AND A TV CELEBRITY CHEF.

Take dinner back to basics with delicious sausage

► This Spicy Sausage and Arugula Penne is packed with lots of flavour

Quick and easy is perfect for a busy night and even better when it has tons of flavour! The trick to that is to pick a few ingredients with tons of taste, then let them do the heavy lifting for you.

It's usually best to start with a main ingredient that is basically agreeable with any flavour. Chicken, pasta, pork tenderloin, potatoes — all great choices.

Stock your fridge with some of these handy ingredients to whip up a tasty meal.

If you can't find bulk sausage meat then simply remove the meat from the casings.

Preparation:

1 In large pot of boiling salted water, cook the penne pasta for about 8 minutes or until it is tender but firm. Drain the pasta reserving 50 ml (1/4 cup) of the cooking water, and set aside.

2 In a large sauté pan set over medium-high, brown the sausage meat and onion for about 10 minutes or until the sausage is cooked through. As it cooks, use a wooden spoon to break up the meat into bite-size chunks. Add the sun-dried tomatoes and arugula, then toss everything well. Add the pasta and toss until heated through and the arugula begins to wilt.

3 Add half of the cheese and a splash of the reserved pasta cooking water to moisten. Toss well, adding more water if desired to create a sauce. Serve topped with the remaining cheese.

- 500 g (1 pound) spicy Italian sausage meat

- 1 large onion, diced
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) oil-packed sun-dried tomatoes, chopped

► Sausage Risotto Primavera: A meal that's loaded with colour & veggies

Preparation:

1 Heat 1/4 cup oil in saucepan over medium heat; add onion and garlic. Cook 3 mins then increase heat to med-high. Add rice and stir until coated with oil. Cook 2 mins. Stir in wine; cook until almost dry, 2 mins.

2 Combine bouillon powder and hot water; mix until blended. Add 1 cup broth to rice, stirring constantly, until most liquid is absorbed by rice. Gradually stir in remaining broth 1 cup at a time, cooking and stirring until liquid is absorbed before adding the next cup.

3 Heat 3 tablespoons oil in nonstick skillet over medium heat. Add vegetables and sauté 3 mins. or until crisp tender. Stir in sausage, remove from heat; set aside until risotto is nearly finished.

Nadal takes upper hand in rivalry at Australian Open

One round earlier than they usually meet in a Grand Slam, Rafael Nadal and Roger Federer still treated it like a final. Nadal outlasted Federer 6-7 (5), 6-2, 7-6 (5), 6-4 in an Australian Open semifinal Thursday night between longtime rivals who had met in eight major finals. Nadal plays the winner of Friday's semifinal between defending champion Novak Djokovic and Andy Murray. On the women's side, Maria Sharapova will play Victoria Azarenka for the championship after overcoming Petra Kvitova in Thursday's afternoon match. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Alfredsson loads up on Sens

- Karlsson, Spezza and Michalek picked by Ottawa captain in NHL all-star fantasy draft
- Chara shows loyalty to Bruins Thomas and Seguin
- San Jose's Couture goes last overall

Captain Zdeno Chara picked Detroit forward Pavel Datsyuk first overall and then turned to Bruins teammate Tim Thomas in goal in the NHL all-star fantasy draft Thursday night. Rival skipper Daniel Alfredsson chose his fellow Senators in the early going.

The Ottawa captain, who lost the puck flip to pick first, chose Senators defenceman Erik Karlsson second and Jason Spezza fourth overall. He took Ottawa forward Milan Michalek with the 24th pick.

Chara also stayed at home with the third pick, taking Thomas. He rescued Bruins forward Tyler Seguin with the 35th selection.

Leafs sniper Phil Kessel, the last man picked in the inaugural draft last year, went 15th overall to Team Chara.

Twin united

Daniel Sedin went to Team Alfredsson in the ninth round — 18th overall. Henrik Sedin joined his brother with the 26th pick.

The last man standing this year was San Jose forward Logan Couture, who had earlier tweeted: "Is it me or is it getting hotter back here after every pick?"

Couture went to Team Alfredsson by default as the 38th player taken.

"It's awesome to be here," he said.

Couture got a Honda Accord Crosstour for his troubles. The NHL and NHL Player's Association also donated $10,000 each to a charity of his choice.

It came down to a final four of Seguin, Buffalo's Jason Pominville, Dallas'

Jamie Benn, and Couture.

Chara ignored players from the rival Canucks, but was quick to welcome Thomas into the fold.

The star goalie has been in the media spotlight this week, after opting not to join the Bruins in a visit to the White House, citing political objections.

On stage after being picked, Thomas said simply: "I followed my conscience." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Manning's comments irk Irsay

Jim Irsay expects Peyton Manning to keep his complaints to himself. Or at least within the confines of the Colts' team complex.

Shortly after introducing Chuck Pagano as Indianapolis' new coach on Thursday, the Colts' owner responded to comments Manning made to the Indianapolis Star by referring to the QB as a "politician."

"I think one thing he's always known, because he's been around it so long, is that, you know, you keep it in the family," Irsay said. "If you've got a problem you talk to each other, it's not about campaigning."

Manning's comments in Tuesday's Star said people were nervous at team headquarters after the off-season firings of vice chairman Bill Polian, general manager Chris Polian and coach Jim Caldwell.

Some considered Manning's comments a sign he is unhappy and that he could be playing in another city next season — if he returns from his third neck surgery. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bucs name Schiano new head coach

The Tampa Buccaneers are counting on Greg Schiano to lead them back to respectability — much the way he did with Rutgers football.

The 45-year-old, former Scarlet Knights coach was hired

Thursday, more than three weeks after the Bucs fired Raheem Morris, whose team finished 4-12 while allowing the most points in the NFL this season.

Schiano was at Rutgers for 11 seasons, taking them from U.S. college laughingstocks to a team that has had winning records in six of the last seven years.

FA Cup looks to NFL for inspiration

► Soccer competition seeks to add glitz to its final

Seeking to restore the allure of the FA Cup, English football is looking to American sport to see how some glitz can be added to the final of world football's oldest domestic cup competition.

Once the main event in the English football calendar and a must-see TV event globally, some of the cup's appeal has been lost as the more lucrative Premier League and Champions League appear to be outshining the 140-year competition.

Wembley Stadium has staged NFL regular season games for five years, giving a glimpse of how the FA Cup final could be spiced up with more entertainment and glamor there.

"We are always learning, we are investing more internal marketing resources alongside that (broadcaster)

"We had a global audience of half-a-billion for the FA Cup final last year, so we know it's a very relevant product."

FA GENERAL SECRETARY
ALEX HORNE

ITV and Budweiser put in," FA General Secretary Alex Horne said while overlooking the Wembley pitch. "As a collective we all think we can make something more of the day of the final and the event — whether it's on the pitch or the buildup to the event.

"Of course we can learn from the NBA events or the NFL events ... there are many people who do this well."

While looking west across the Atlantic for inspiration on event management, Horne is not losing sight of the competition's big fan base in the East.

"The FA Cup continues to attract huge audiences throughout the world, especially in Asia," Horne said. "China and Thailand are huge markets for English football and the FA Cup in particular."

But the FA Cup final could be moved from its traditional kickoff time this season in a bid to boost British TV audiences, potentially hitting Asian viewing figures.

The final is set to be at 5:15 p.m. instead of 3 p.m., while talks are under way with the Premier League about preventing a repeat of last season when the match had to be played on the same day as a topflight league program for the first time in 50 years.

'I'm just glad I get to come back'

► Fielder makes his Detroit return

Prince Fielder stood with a smile and recalled his earliest memories of old Tiger Stadium, when he would hang out at the ballpark where his father hit so many massive home runs.

"For me, it was always Sparky saying I was going to pinch hit — and I really believed him," Fielder said, referring to former manager Sparky Anderson. "I'm just glad I get to come back."

The Tigers introduced Fielder on Thursday after finalizing a US$214 million, nine-year contract with the free agent first baseman, who is expected to hit a lot more home runs than his dad.

Fielder was born in 1984, the last time Detroit won the World Series. After luring him back to Michigan with the fourth-largest deal in baseball history, the Tigers are hoping Fielder will help usher in a new championship era for the Motor City.

"This is awesome," Fielder said. "It's kind of a dream come true. I'm excited."

Detroit began seriously pursuing Fielder after designated hitter Victor Martinez tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee during off-season conditioning. Now the Tigers have three of baseball's biggest stars — Fielder, Miguel Cabrera and Justin Verlander — all in their primes. Detroit won the AL Central by 15 games last year but lost to Texas in the AL championship series.

"We're trying to win right now," general manager Dave Dombrowski said. "We tried to win last year. We were close. I think we've reached a point now, on a yearly basis, we feel that way. When you look at the core of our group of players, there's a lot of guys that are on that field right now that are quality players."

It will be up to manager Jim Leyland to figure out where to play all of his powerful hitters. He said Thursday the Tigers will move Miguel Cabrera from first base to third to make room for Fielder. He also listed a possible batting order, with Cabrera hitting third and Fielder fourth.

It's a lineup based on power, not speed. That much is clear.

"If they hit it where they're supposed to hit 'em, they can trot," Leyland said. "We're going back to the old-fashioned baseball. We've got big-time power on the corners." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
